We are the fortunate heirs of a great and venerable spiritual tradition, shamanism, many thousands of years old, with core principles and practices that are universal or common for one simple reason: they work. Among them is soul retrieval, found widely in shamanic cultures.

Dr. Harner learned how to do soul retrieval in 1961 while living among the Amazonian Conibo and brought it to the West. The Conibo taught him that every part of a person had its own soul, and that soul retrieval could be done for any portion of the person that had been injured or traumatized. In The Way of the Shaman, he wrote of recovering “vital souls” to heal comatose persons and persons suffering from traumas, noting that this method can also be used “to heal patients by retrieving lost portions of their vital souls.” Michael began training students in soul retrieval at least as early as 1982.

This training in power soul retrieval is based on principles and methods that have been used successfully not just by the Conibo, but cross-culturally. Core soul retrieval is a shamanic healing method and does not involve the addition of Western psychological practices.

Prerequisite FSS Workshops: The Way of the Shaman \(the Basic workshop\); AND 1. These two advanced weekend workshops: Shamanic Extraction Healing and Shamanism, Dying, and Beyond; OR 2. Completion of the FSS Three-Year Program of Advanced Initiations in Shamanism and Shamanic Healing; OR 3. Completion of the Two Week Shamanic Healing Intensive. Core soul retrieval training is also offered as part of the FSS Two Week Shamanic Healing Intensive.

Participants in this workshop should bring a notebook and pen to record your experiences, a bandanna or eye mask to cover your eyes, and a drum or rattle if you have one.

Nan P. Moss is a Certified Harner Method Shamanic Counselor and senior faculty member of the Foundation for Shamanic Studies.
